America's climate flop

The Senate's retreat from cap-and-trade might, one day, lead to a carbon tax. For now it leaves a dreadful mess: leader, page 9. The Democrats abandon their efforts to limit emissions through legislation, page 24

How to cut poverty

Conditional-cash transfers are good. They could be even better: leader, page 8. Brazil's much admired and emulated anti-poverty programme—and its limits, pages 17-18. A better way to measure poverty: Economics focus, page 59

Britain's radical coalition

The mere fact of the coalition is no longer the most interesting thing about it. The state is in for radical reform, page 40
